

HARDING MAKES RAPID PROGRESS

Start is Made by New Regime on Difficult Problems of U. S.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington.—The first month of the administration of President Harding has passed so rapidly that it is almost as if it had never been.

Viewing the work of the new regime dispassionately and with a recognition of the fact that it was not the most brilliant part of the administration, it is still true that a start has been made on the most difficult problems of the last four weeks.

President Harding was looked upon before his election as a man of more or less leisurely ways. He has worked hard and fast. He has been at his desk every day. He has been at his desk every day. He has been at his desk every day.

NEW "Y" CAFETERIA OPENS WEDNESDAY

Will Serve Three Meals Daily—"Open House" Monday, Tuesday.

Believing that the serving of wholesome meals has the same bearing on the development of physical and moral efficiency as a well-conducted gymnasium class, the local Young Men's Christian Association will open its new cafeteria Wednesday.

The basement of the building has been renovated to make room for the improvement without removing the showers or locker-room facilities. It was found advisable to dispose of the bowling alleys.

Home-cooked meals including bread, meat, potatoes and possibly fruit will be served. New evening lunches will be served. In opening the cafeteria, the Y follows the example of larger institutions.

Capacity is Sixty.

The dining room is in the east corner of the basement with two entrances, one from the street and the other from the lobby. Walls, ceiling and accessories have been painted white. The clean appearance is furthered by window boxes filled with flowers.

White-topped chairs have been installed. The silver and dishes are of a finer grade than seen in most restaurants. The seating capacity is 60.

Three Meals Daily.

The regulation cafeteria table, 28 feet long, accommodating server and customer, will be used. An ice cream machine, suitable for milk and cream and a water cooler, are added features.

The kitchen is equipped for cleanliness and efficiency. An electric washing machine cleans all dishes in less than an hour. A refrigerator of five compartments will keep all perishables.

The first dinner will be served Tuesday noon when the Y. M. C. A. directors will inspect the place. Meals will be served to the public starting Wednesday morning at 6:30. Breakfast will be served from 6:30 to 8:30.

Open House for Public.

Open House for the public's inspection will be held Monday and Tuesday from 3 to 6 o'clock and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Mrs. Julia Marshall and Mrs. Margaret True, both experienced in cafeteria work, have been secured to act as managers. Miss Deborah McDonald, famous here for her boarding house meals, is chief cook assisted by Mrs. A. H. Burns.

Winners Named in Bean Contest.

For guessing the closest to the number of beans in a jar, Margaret Roseland, 501 South Jackson street, was awarded first prize in the contest of Young Men's Club and carry grocery, 407 South Jackson street. There were 2183 beans in the jar and Miss Roseland guessed 2153. The other prize winners were Marian Keutmann, 508 Chestnut street, 2250; second, Mrs. W. Hill, 602 Chestnut street, 2087; third, Vera Colver, 511 Jackson street, Mrs. Clara Lewis, 238 South Jackson street and Donald Little, 322 South River street all guessed 2000. All received groceries.

Villagers Can't Agree on Curfew.

South Beloit.—All leaders of children's work in this city agree that children should go to bed sometime after dark, but due to the fact that a majority cannot agree on the curfew, it has become a serious problem.

M. J. Shackleton, president of the Civic Improvement association, contends that if a curfew is blown every boy will be waiting around to break the law. He claims it is customary with children just to do what they have been told not to do. A committee is investigating.

Platteville School May Be Abandoned.

Platteville.—The Wisconsin School of Mines here may be abandoned by the legislature and the student body shifted to the University of Wisconsin which maintains a department of engineering. Members of the legislature claim this would save the state $75,000 yearly. The proposal will probably be drafted into a bill and presented to the legislature at this session.

De Pere.—Harry Lopez, a sergeant in Battery B of Brown county, which saw much service in France, is an applicant for the position of postmaster of West De Pere. His papers have been sent to Washington.

Death Claims Mrs. Clark, 82

Mrs. Newton H. Clark, 82, a resident of Janesville for 56 years, died at 2 o'clock Sunday morning at her home in the Hayes apartment, 321 South High street. In her death, Janesville has lost one of its oldest and most beloved citizens.

CONSERVATION of Family Resources

One sure way to fight H. C. L.—conservation. Food is the main item of expenditure in the family budget—sickness is another. If you can't afford an ice box for the sake of the food which will spoil in hot weather, you cannot afford to be without one for the sake of health thus guarded by proper care of food stuffs.

Unsanitary refrigerators are as bad as none at all. Supposing the children were stricken with fever because of eating foods contaminated by a filthy icer. Trust your food only to the best icing conditions.

The Famous Gurney

The Gurney refrigerator is just as clean as your favorite china set scalded and polished for "company" dinner. There isn't a place in its porcelain lining for a germ to hide. Easy to clean, it keeps things deliciously fresh and cool.

Many models and sizes to choose from. Prices you will be glad to pay. No use to wait for summer. A Gurney refrigerator is something you need all the time. You buy them at Leath's.

PEONAGE AND MURDER IN GEORGIA.

What happened in Georgia when in order to do away with evidence, a planter caused the murder of 11 negroes, has been going on, barring the murder itself, for many years. In fact ever since the Civil War in practically all the Southern States. It will be hard to find a county in any of them, especially in the sections where the negro population predominates, where it has not been the custom to arrest negroes as vagrants when help is wanted badly, the planter paying the fine to the willing magistrate, and becoming responsible to the county officials for the prisoner. The negro is taken to a plantation, and as a quasi-deputy sheriff, the planter gets the labor, not only for the time required to work out the fine but for an indefinite period, the time being decided by the planter himself, who holds the life, labor and destiny of the negro in his hands. In fact the negro is sold into bondage. Here and there are cases, where the same thing has happened to white "crackers," as the poor "white trash" of the south is known. The same method is applied to convicts who are guilty of petty crimes besides vagrancy. These come in the due course and process of the law. But in time when there is need of help and none can be had in the ordinary channel, the rounding up of a half-dozen negroes with a vagrancy charge is a favorite and accepted method of getting farm labor. Once in a while there is an honest planter who will pay the fines and costs, and discharge the prisoner when, under the prevailing scale of wages, the sum of the fine has been earned. However, that is not the general rule. The procedure common and against which the Federal government is fighting, is the retention of the prisoner long after the fine has been worked out. Service generally terminates with the escape of the convict. Prisoners are hired from convict gangs doing road work and are taken from one county into another.

In the recent case in Georgia just ended with the conviction of the planter Williams, and his sentence to life imprisonment, the murder of the 11 negroes followed an investigation of the peonage charge by Federal officials. Williams in fear that the 11 would testify against the planter, as they undoubtedly would have done, got them out of the way by cold, brutal murders.

Not only Georgia, but the whole nation is concerned in the purging of the state and the republic from the possibility of slave crimes like this. A few years ago the president, superintendent and several other officials of a great lumber concern in Alabama, operating the second largest mill in the south, were sent to the Atlanta federal penitentiary for peonage of the same kind.

These appalling crimes are committed under the apparent sanction of local magistrates who are party to the peonage. With these things smirching our skirts, how can we complain of Russia and what Germany did in Belgium with a clear conscience. We are morally guilty as a nation. Nor can the white man of the south find an iota of palliation for these acts.

Congress will begin to travel the special session way Tuesday and there is likely to be some punctures owing to the tax on the road.

JANESVILLE'S NEW CLUB ORGANIZATION.
With the formal election of officers and the completion of its membership list required, the Kiwanis club of Janesville has been added to the organizations having a distinct place in the civic and social life of the city. Kiwanis is established in nearly three hundred cities of the United States and like its brother and neighbor, the Rotary, has created a decidedly high eminence of civic service wherever it has been organized. In Janesville there is plenty to do and with a membership of the younger men of the city, stirred with enthusiasm for everything that is beneficial to the city, and with a regular program for such action, the influence of Kiwanis cannot help but be felt. Every such club has enough to do, either with each other joined for a common purpose or separately devoted to some special work of importance. It can be anticipated that Kiwanis in Janesville will become the center of initiative for many things. It has nothing of the political in its program, except that it must stand for the best there is in government both in principle and in fact, and has no part in campaigns. Kiwanis is welcomed to Janesville and a long and useful life is predicted for it.

According to Mr. Hughes the United States has quit turning the grindstone to sharpen European axes.

Kenosha which has been running a close second to Hurley as the hell hole of the United States is being cleaned up. One alderman, a saloon keeper and chairman of the license committee, has been arrested with some 17 others for violation of the liquor laws. Kenosha has had an immense trade in illicit whiskey and been the source of supply for many neighboring towns and cities. With Milwaukee and Kenosha wined out as distributing centers there is likely to be less crime and violation in the district surrounding.

Commission form of government was overwhelmingly upheld at the referendum in both Fond du Lac and Eau Claire. In Oshkosh and Eau Claire the citizens refused to take over city government.

The Grin Behind the Counter

By FREDERICK A. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—For five years the customer has been smiling appealingly at the girl or the man behind the counter, hoping to get a little attention from that proud being. Now the smile has migrated. The sales-person is the supplicating one, and the customer has once more assumed his proper attitude of arrogant independence.

We are now in a transition period. Pictorially speaking, the merchant is sliding down a steep hill toward low prices, trying desperately to make a gradual descent. Meanwhile, the public stands aloof, meditatively considering how long it will be before he hits bottom. We could go further and describe the storm of unemployment which is about to break over the unsuspecting thinker's head if he hesitates too long, and numerous other details, but the analogy grows complicated.

This point is that the buyer has changed in character from an eagerly reckless customer to a very cautious one who demands to be shown. This change in the attitude of the buying public has been met by the editors of a number of trade journals. It is further substantiated by the merchants themselves. All of them seem to be taking trouble to please customers. And many are increasing their overhead expenses for service, at a time when every possible economy is being practised in store management.

This last is brought out by an inquiry just made by the Domestic Distribution Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Dodd, the head of the department, sent questionnaires to merchants all over the country in order to find out how they are meeting the position of declining prices. Of the 1,650 answers received, he learned that very few shopkeepers are making any cuts in service. Most women, quick delivery service, instructors in fancy work, and other attractions are to be continued and in many cases new ones added.

These are the usual methods of making a store attractive, but Mr. Dodd has a new suggestion for the same purpose of interesting buyers. It is that merchants should take the public into their confidence and make plain the why and wherefore of the declining prices. The overhead expense, bargain sales and price levels.

Some other branches of industry and business long ago saw the wisdom of showing the people exactly how they worked. It was figured for instance, that if telephone patrons knew how connections were made, and recognized the human element in a telephone system, there would be fewer hasty, irascible complaints—and there were.

Now, Mr. Dodd explains, people are demanding to know how costs are added and why prices have been doubled or tripled between producer and consumer. They want to know why the cost of living, which rose 85 per cent from 1914 and 1920, should have fallen so far only 50 per cent. The public is asking why prices do not come down faster and who is getting the profits if the merchant is losing money, as he says he is. And it is partly because these questions are not being answered, or are answered so confusingly, by different people, that the merchant's answer settles down to see if prices will not reach the desired normal before he has to buy.

All of the troubles of the merchant, and his opportunities for profiteering as well, should be thoroughly explained to the public, Mr. Dodd believes. This would make for greater honesty toward the customer, and a more reasonable attitude toward the merchant.

The instability of markets is so confusing to the buyer now that a little of Mr. Dodd's open disclosure would be welcomed by many of the ultimate consumers. His questionnaire sheds some rays of light on the retailer's side of the problem, so we mention some of the conclusions drawn from the 1,650 answers.

The obstacle to lower prices and stability most frequently mentioned in the questionnaires was railroad rates. Transportation was pronounced as high as to discourage shipment of goods, and it was further claimed that present railroad fares make the expense of selling saleramen extremely heavy. Each of these items help to account for the price of a piece of goods by the time it reaches a shop-counter. The merchants who complained about transportation costs urged that the railroads should lose no time in cutting wages and rates, so that in turn merchandise could be cut more rapidly.

The questionnaires answers also bewailed the man so expensive an item of overhead. Some felt hotel rates which help to make the traveling salesman the most expensive man in the line and begin to feel the new proportion to the gradual decrease in the cost of living.

Regarding the extent of their own retrenchments, the merchants expressed varying sentiments. Many explained that wages of salesgirls could not be lowered to a great extent because their wages were not raised in comparison with those in industry. The majority of store owners complied with requests for more pay, in part at least, by granting a bonus, with the definite understanding that this bonus was to be given only through the emergency period of war prices. Many of these bonuses are now stopped.

Some merchants reported partial reductions in wages. A number explained in their questionnaires that they called their employees together and told them that it wasn't a question of profits any longer but of being able to stay in business at all. Others again have not made wage reductions because they felt that their employees could not manage on less and that they would be forced to turn them over to the state for support. Long hours and insistence on great cutbacks have been being tried by some instead of wage reductions.

One line where new tactics are being developed is in credit deals between the wholesaler and the retailer. Long credit on shipments of goods is a satisfactory policy when prices are on the rise. Then, no matter how long the merchant takes to sell the goods there is no danger of his getting less for them than at the time he bought them, and so the wholesaler sticks to him. But when prices decline, the stock bought today from a wholesaler for $10 may be offered at $10 next month. So the retailer buys less at a time, and keeps his stock moving.

From now on, Mr. Dodd prophesies, merchants must get used to doing business on a declining price basis instead of on the ascending basis of the past few years. "We are experiencing," he says, "similar conditions to those that followed the Civil War. For 30 years prices slowly fell and a whole generation of dealers conducted business on that basis of slowly declining prices. This recurring situation has practically stopped buying during the past few months. People stopped buying in defiance when prices became ridiculously high. But the buyers' strike, so called, now is largely a subconscious revolt. People are frightened into economy by unemployment scares and by wage reductions, and then too they are still using the things they bought during the rising price scramble. Now they are beginning to wear out the extra shoes and suits they bought so anxiously, and they are expected to begin to buy cautiously, but at a more normal rate."

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

"I am 22 years old," writes a correspondent, "and have the kind of mother that does not believe in discussing some things with a daughter. Consequently I am quite unsophisticated. It doesn't seem possible for one of my age, does it? Yet I realize how much information I have picked up here and there and how unreliable, and that I am really in ignorance."

Now I am away from home and beginning to go out a good deal with men, all of whom must upon 'spooning.' It seems to be the only way in which I can have a good time. But still I am afraid I do not know the right way. ... Will you please give me the names of books or other literature which I may read. ... That fathers should not discuss the proper instruction for their own sons is bad enough, betraying a deplorable weakness and incompetence. What mothers should fail to teach their own daughters the plain truths which should be so much for health and happiness, is certainly a sad thing to contemplate. This must be a pretty rotten old world, when we can have our own children into the claws of the devil. Parents guilty of sins of commission against their own flesh and blood are honorable beings compared with parents who commit this unpardonable sin of omission, sending their children out into the world unwarned and unarmed against dangers they must encounter everywhere.

Speaking as a mere man, and no angel, I think I can answer the question some of you ask. The proper instruction for their own sons is bad enough, betraying a deplorable weakness and incompetence. This must be a pretty rotten old world, when we can have our own children into the claws of the devil. Parents guilty of sins of commission against their own flesh and blood are honorable beings compared with parents who commit this unpardonable sin of omission, sending their children out into the world unwarned and unarmed against dangers they must encounter everywhere.

If a young man respects a young woman of course he will not go to bed with her until he has asked her to marry. If such a question is prompted in the young man's mind by the conduct of the young man, you may bet your sweet life that the young man doesn't respect the young woman. The girl of today marries is not the spoony type; he thinks too highly of the woman he would marry to insult her, even if she is open to insult.

It is certainly a sad thing to realize that many young women actually have some such notion as that of our correspondent—that a girl must be a virgin to be married. Parents guilty of sins of commission against their own flesh and blood are honorable beings compared with parents who commit this unpardonable sin of omission, sending their children out into the world unwarned and unarmed against dangers they must encounter everywhere.

Q. Who appoints the chief justice of the supreme court, and is it necessary for him to be a member among the justices? D. L.

A. The president of the United States appoints all justices of the supreme court of the United States. It is not necessary that the chief justice be selected from the number of associate justices. In fact Chief Justice Waite is the only chief justice who was an associate justice before his appointment as chief justice.

Q. What are the Ides of March? D. L.

A. The "Ides of March" has reference to the Roman system of reckoning time. They divided their month into Kalends, Nones and Ides. The Kalends came on the first of the month. In March, May, July and October, the Nones fell on the 7th and the Ides on the 15th. In the remaining months, the Nones came on the 5th, and the Ides on the 13th. The Ides of March therefore was the day between the 15th to the 1st of the following month.

Q. In a machine gun shooting 500 times a minute, what will be the distance between the bullets? G. G. L.

A. The War Department says that a machine gun shooting 500 times per minute would have a distance between the bullets of approximately 250 to 270 feet.

Q. Why do clerks put the box of cigars on the counter for a man to select his own cigars? G. G. L.

A. The Bureau of Internal Revenue says that the law states that after a cigar has been removed from the box it may not be returned. It is customary for the dealer to allow the customer to help himself to the number of cigars desired, rather than to insist upon a decision first.

Q. Will you please tell me whether there is a fluid that lubricates and does not heat under continuous pressure? L. F. H.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that there is no fluid that lubricates without heating under continuous pressure.

Q. What is meant by the expression "Job's Comforter"? D. L.

A. This is a popular expression for one who, like Job's friends, while pretending sympathy in times of distress, presents the most hopeless side of the situation.

Boys with troubles of their own are cordially invited to write me frankly and I will advise them as I would my own son. Frankly, I said. Good health, clean sport, temperance, purity and confidence, even the self-discipline of self-denial, are pleasures infinitely greater than the enjoyment to be had in opposite ways, if people could only realize the fact before the way of sin fell due.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Travel via the Lettuce.
How can I protect my family from typhoid infection from lettuce coming from a country place where there is no running water? It is the iceberg kind, and one cannot pull it apart leaf by leaf for washing. Would soaking lettuce in water help? Does the chilling do any good? Are the germs on the surface of the leaves or inside the leaves? (Mrs. E. B. ...)

ANSWER—If lettuce is washed with polluted water or grown in soil polluted with human excrement of course there is a possibility that typhoid infection may be so conveyed. I know of no better protection than washing the lettuce with clean water. Chilling or freezing does not destroy typhoid bacilli. The safe course, if you have reason to fear such infection, is for each member of the family to become immune by taking the prophylactic (bacterin) which prevents such infection among our troops in the World War. Any physician can administer this.

American Association Set for Big Opening Wednesday

Milwaukee, Wis.—Strengthened through the acquisition of several players from the major leagues, the Milwaukee club enters the 1921 pennant race with the hope of finishing in the first division. Otto Borchert, president of the club, spent considerable money for new players.

New plays include: second baseman "King" Lear of the New York Giants; Alex McCarthy, third baseman, secured from Kansas City; Art Dunn, catcher, from St. Louis; Virgil Barnes, pitcher, also from the New York Giants; Eddie Schnack, pitcher, and outfielder McElillo, both from Winnipeg; and pitcher Staughton, from Martinsburg, West Virginia.

The infield has been raised four inches and put under rolling operations. Other improvements have been made at the park. A new screen has been installed to prevent foul balls dropping into the stand. The tentative line-up for the opening game against St. Paul follows:

CANTILON IS READY.
Milwaukee, Minn.—Manager Joe Cantillon has a surprise ready for the followers of his clan this season. Cantillon has a new infield, the same hard-hitting outfield as last year, and has strengthened his pitching and catching departments.

At home, the Millers will have an advantage of a new playing infield. The Minneapolis field last year was considered one of the worst in the league. It has been rebuilt and is believed to rank among the best.

INDIANS NEED HURTERS

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two good pitchers and a catcher who can hit are needed to make Indianapolis a contender for the pennant this year. In the opinion of Manager Jack Hendricks, he expected to have the three players before the season begins or soon thereafter.

As the team lines up, Hendricks is confident it will finish in first division. Only two changes in the infield of 1920 will be made at the start. Sicking being at second base and either Baird or Luttrell at third.

SAINTS ARE STRONG.

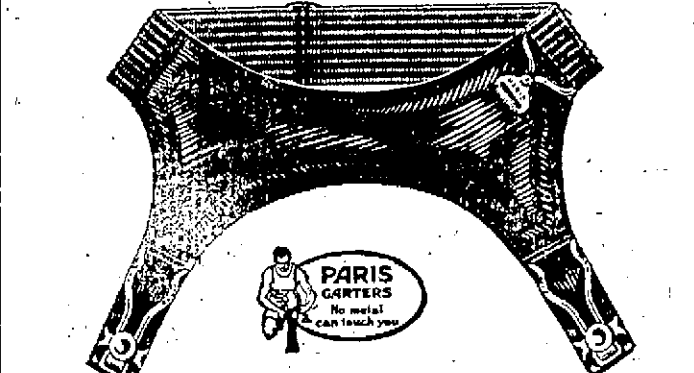

St. Paul, Minn.—The St. Paul club will get into action against Milwaukee Wednesday, with the Saints appearing almost as strong as the outfit that made a runaway race of the 1920 pennant chase.

With the exception of third base, which last season was played by "Goldie" Rapp, now with the New York Nationals, last year's infield is intact. It is expected that Armstrong will start the season at third. The 1920 outfield, composed of Riggert, Miller, Duncan and Haas, declared by many experts to be the best combination in minor leagues will be ready for the season's start.

SPENDING MCDHENS.

Toledo, O.—When the Toledo club will get into action against Milwaukee Wednesday, with the Saints appearing almost as strong as the outfit that made a runaway race of the 1920 pennant chase.

NEW KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, Mo.—Thoroughly overhauled and materially strengthened in the pitching department and field, the Kansas City club will open the 1921 season with a new manager, Otto Knappe is confident the team which ended a disastrous season last year in the bottom position, will be a formidable contender for the pennant this year.

Three new players will appear this year. Zwilling, who was brought here from Indianapolis, will be at right, Cochran third and Butler, formerly of Milwaukee, at second.

In the opinion of critics, three weak spots, will have to be bolstered before the Kansas City machine is complete—left field, shortstop and the catching department. A good first string catcher is needed.

Breakaw, the new first sacker, arrived Saturday. He will be seen in his initial workout at the grounds Monday afternoon and in the game Tuesday.

An important meeting of the officials of the schedule is scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Major League
Season Opens
on Wednesday

New York.—With veteran stars refurbished and new ones preparing to flash across the small firmament, the major league season of 1921 opens on eastern and western diamonds Wednesday. While there will be no changes in the well established circuits of either the National or American Leagues, there will be many new faces in the personnel of the 16 clubs composing the two organizations.

With the call of the umpires sending the players on their six months' pennant chase, the National League will have inaugurated its 46th consecutive season as the senior association clubs played their initial games early in 1976. In the American League it will mark the beginning of the 22nd season as the junior league was formed in 1900.

Notwithstanding the unprecedented popularity of baseball during the past two years, club owners and league officials are firm in their belief that the national sport is facing a still graver period of prosperity in the months to come and have made their plans accordingly. Hunting for the Man With Dollars

The Gazette's Growing Circulation is the Best Guide

The Janesville Gazette automatically finds practically every worthwhile person in Southern Wisconsin in the field now covered.

The advertising announcements of the merchants in the Gazette are bound to reach the man and woman with the dollar.

During the last year or so when demand exceeded the supply it was easy to sell more goods than could be sold under ordinary conditions by a good salesman, but things are going to be different from now on.

That's why the Gazette is expanding its circulation, putting on for instance, 150 new subscribers in Delavan last week, 100 subscribers in Whitewater last week, covering the territory in Ft. Atkinson and Jefferson this week.

You can definitely develop your business from the same territory that the Gazette is definitely developing its circulation. You are invited to confer with our Service Department for any information or assistance you may need in creating additional trade in your business.
